

How do you give a clear instruction?

What do you want them to do?

Be specific

Break tasks down into small steps

One thing at a time.

Praise the effort – not perfection

Remember to say please and thank you

Tell them what to do – not what not to do!

Model how to do the task

Start where they are and gradually increase the difficulty?

Work out achievable steps

Say things in the order you would like them to be done in Use First and Then to communicate what you would like your child to do?

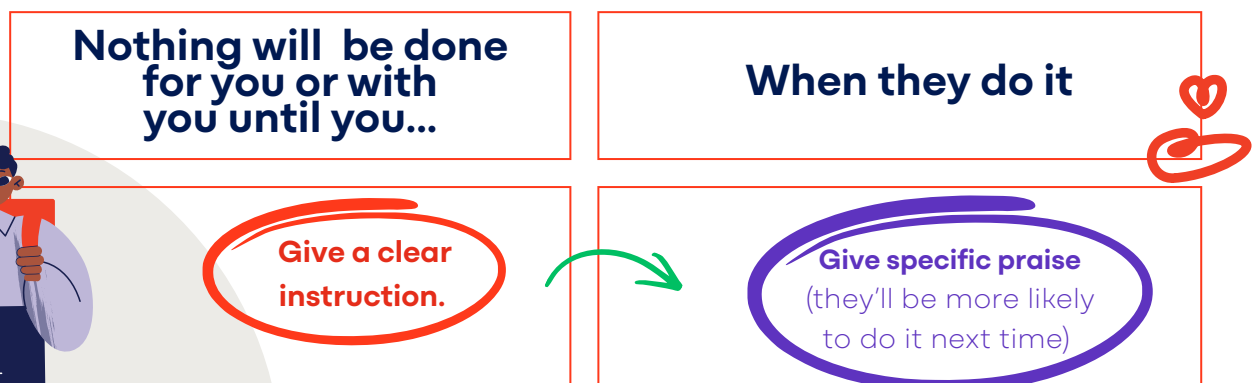

If they refuse use these phrases

If they still refuse move on to say

If they still refuse

This last step very rarely needs to be used. It is difficult to do but quickly reinforces that your word is your bond

What would you like them to do?

Give a clear instruction.

First you must...

then you can...

Specific Praise
(more likely to do it next time)

If they refuse

When you...

then you can...

If they refuse

Before you do anything else

you must

Specific Praise
(more likely to do it next time)

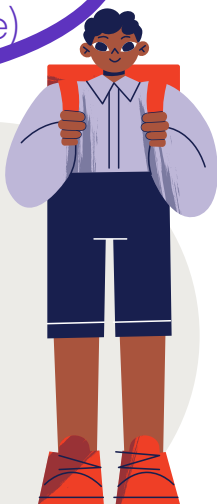

Specific Praise
(more likely to do it next time)

If they refuse

Nothing will be done for you or with you until you

Very rarely needs to be used

This is difficult to do but quickly reinforces that your word is your bond

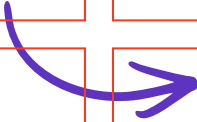

your word is your bond

What would you like them to do?

Give a clear instruction. ✓

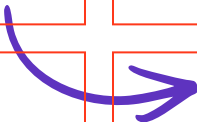

First you must...	then you can...

Specific Praise (more likely to do it next time)

If they refuse ✗

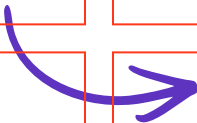

When you...	then you can...

Specific Praise (more likely to do it next time)

If they refuse ✗

Before you do anything else	you must

Specific Praise (more likely to do it next time)

If they refuse ✗

Nothing will be done for you or with you until you..

Very rarely needs to be used

This is difficult to do but quickly reinforces that your word is your bond